Total Buzzkill

With only one week left before MCAL play begins, a handful of teams around the league will be getting their first look at their full squad today. While any school will want their athletes to have success, that success on the basketball court can be very detrimental to the soccer team as they look to do well in key non-conference contests and to be fully prepared for opening day.

San Marin, Tamalpais, San Rafael, Marin Catholic, Justin-Siena, Branson, and Novato all made the NCS playoffs, ruling them out to as early as last Thursday. The more they win, the longer they will be away from their soccer teams. A win in the NCS quarters not only means you are out until after the following Wednesday's semi-final match, but also another week as you will have qualified for the NorCal Championships.

Six of the seven teams have been eliminated from the NCS and those players are now all back with their squads, but the Novato Hornets have rallied off back to back upsets to advance to the semi-finals, and have clinched a spot in the NorCal playoffs. That win has ruled those players out of the opening day of MCAL play against Drake. With key players for the Hornets still unavailable, the basketball team's cinderella run has become a serious buzzkill on the pitch.
