Around the League

We are nearing the midway point of the regular season, and the battle for the four playoff spots is shaping up to be one that goes down to the wire. Redwood is the only remaining unbeaten team, but even their three draws in their first six games illustrate how competitive the league has been in the first half of the season.

Winter weather is now upon us, right when the league calendar gets the most congested, with two three-game weeks in the next three weeks. How teams manage the workload, and the rain will have a big say as to who claims the four coveted playoff spots.

Marin Catholic made a strong push towards claiming a playoff spot for themselves, going into Branson and handing the Bulls their first home loss to an MCAL team since the new turf was installed. Zoe Shepherd's first half goal proved to be enough, and snapped the 23-game streak. The Wildcats followed that up with an important 0-0 draw vs Drake.

The Red-Tail Hawks exploded for seven goals at Novato on Saturday, a venue that had given them trouble in recent years. Lauren Ross registered the league's first hat-trick, and Lily Travers passed her way to a four assist match. Grace Gustafson made it back to back games with a free-kick goal for the Hawks, netting one of her own after Thalia Greenberg did it midweek.

Terra Linda snapped a streak of their own as well, ending a nine-game losing streak to Redwood after securing a 0-0 draw over the weekend. It was the first point Terra Linda had taken from Redwood since the spring of 2014, and was a massive point that keeps them in the thick of things in the race for the top four.

As results have shown so far this season, you can't sleep on any team, and every point you can accumulate will be of great importance.
