Will The Dawgs Finally Have Their Day?

Since 2010 one thing has been sure, when the playoffs come around you will always see Tamalpais, Branson, Drake, Redwood, and Marin Catholic. All five have been a part of every MCAL playoff this decade, with Tamalpais, Marin Catholic, Redwood, and Branson all lifting the coveted banner.

The sixth playoff spot has exchanged hands many times, as has the unenviable 7th place finish in MCAL, meaning you missed the playoffs by just one spot...

San Marin started the decade with back to back 6th place finishes, followed by a 7th place in 2012. Since then it has been a tough go for the Mustangs, compiling a 4-50-4 record in the past five seasons including this one.

It was Novato's turn in 2012 to make a playoff appearance, finishing 6th in the MCAL. The Hornets finished 5th in 2015, and 6th again last season. They are hoping to make their 4th appearance this decade, and can secure it with one point in the final week.

Justin-Siena made their lone appearance in 2013, and Terra Linda earned their only playoff berth of the decade in 2014.

The only team not to have made the playoffs yet this decade is San Rafael. They have come close on two occasions, finishing 7th in 2013 and again in 2015, but have yet to make the grade. This year they are once again sitting in 7th, but after a crucial road draw at Drake they find themselves only five points back of Novato for the last playoff spot. San Rafael host the bottom two in their last two games, while Novato must play current leader MC, and travel to Redwood. Should San Rafael win both, and Novato lose both, the Dawgs would finally have their day...
